Mr. Negrón-Navas has been active in environmental law since 1978, when he developed and chaired the Environmental Practice Group for one of Puerto Rico's major law firms. His extensive experience, knowledge of the law, understanding of how administrative agencies work, and his negotiation skills help clients manage and mitigate risk and liability. His practice extends to all areas of federal and state environmental laws and regulations.

Mr. Negrón-Navas has successfully negotiated multiple permit and enforcement action cases with the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) pertaining to CWA, CAA, RCRA, CERCLA, and with the Puerto Rico Environmental Quality Board (EQB) pertaining to the Puerto Rico Environmental Public Policy Act and the regulations promulgated thereunder. He has represented multinational companies in land acquisitions, environmental impact reviews, construction, operations, expansions, consolidations and divestitures. He has ample experience on the environmental permit and liability implications of asset and stock purchase acquisitions.
